

Supervisors request school board return $180,000 Camille loan

Hancock Supervisors requested the return of $180,000 in Governor's Emergency Council money from the county school board Monday in order to make a partial repayment of the $675,000 loan received from the state after Hurricane Camille.

Supervisors attending a meeting for county officials in Biloxi May 14 were told by Francis Geoghegan, state director of the Commission of Budget and Accounting, that a plan for repayment of the loans must be submitted by June 6.

According to state law, local governments are required to levy a two mill tax to repay the money.

Board Attorney Sam Favre told supervisors Monday that it would take 15 to 20 years to repay the $675,000 loan. "The simplest way is to turn back the $180,000 that the school board has now to reduce the principal by that much," Favre said.

"The money that we have left from the loan, which is about $16,000, will only pay for the interest payment that is due in August, at which time the county will have to levy the two mill tax to pay for the rest."

Board member Jerry Ladner said Monday he would not vote for a two mill levy to pay back the loan. Favre then warned Ladner that the state could take legal action against the county for refusal to repay the loan and could withhold homestead exemptions until the tax is levied.

In other business the board accepted a report prepared by the Gulf Regional Planning Commission suggesting improvements at railroad crossings throughout the county. The report was sponsored by the Governor's Highway Safety Program.

The report stated that traffic counts and accident reports dating from 1972 indicated that only four crossings in Hancock County had a high enough rating to warrant signal lights and bells. The crossings are located at Waveland Ave., Booker St., Nicholson Ave., and Washington St.

Residents of Lakeshore and Clermont Harbor, who have been trying since February to get signal lights at major crossings, objected to the study because, in their words, it did not take into account the additional summer traffic in the area.

Board president Alton Kellar requested GRPC to make a re-inspection of the Clermont Harbor - Lakeshore area during the summer months to see if the signal lights are needed. The current report suggests advanced warning signs and pavement markings for crossings in these communities.

In other business the board accepted a bid from Pearl River Paving Co. for work on four county roads including the Kiln-Delisle Road, $24,525; South Road no. 2, $17,582.50; South Road no. 3, $16,245; and Access Road to the Crippled Children Center in Kiln, $2,972.00.

All bids for work on the Dummy Line Road and the Rocky Hill Road were rejected by the board and will be re-advertised. The lowest bid from Bond Paving for $48,692 was 7.6 percent above the state estimate for the work.

Hancock school board will request extension of GEC spending deadline

By ANITA DINWIDDIE

The Hancock County School Board will send a letter to the State Commission of Budget and Accounting requesting permission to use $180,000 in Governor's Emergency Council funds for a new cafeteria at Hancock North Central, said school board Attorney Joseph Gex.

The board was asked Tuesday by Hancock Supervisors to turn back the money that had been allocated to the county schools as a partial repayment of the $675,000 in Camille loans.

Gex said the board had decided to write to Francis Geoghegan, director of the state office, asking him to allow the board to spend the money because it had been allocated by the supervisors before the Sept. 30, 1974 deadline for spending the money.

"In my opinion, when the board allocated the money to the county schools, they were in reality, spending the money, and we should be able to use the money as we see fit," said board chairman Monvel Cuevas.

County board attorney Sam Favre said, however, in his opinion the allocation of the money would not be seen as spending the money by the state officials.

Favre told the school board that some projects in the county could be financed by the GEC funds because they had received prior approval from the Budget and Accounting office before the Sept. 30 deadline, but that the Hancock North Central cafeteria had not been programmed by the office.

"Personally, I would love to see you have the money," said Favre, "because I know you need it, especially since both of your bond issues failed, but there is just no way that the state is going to approve spending any of this money."

School board attorney Joseph Gex said that he did not believe that Geoghegan would approve the request.

He said that no actual commitments had been made on the project and the supervisors' allocation of the money would probably not be interpreted as spending the money.

Cuevas questioned Favre on the consequences of refusing to give back the money, and the attorney told him that either the county or the state could issue a mandamus order to take back the money.

Chamber seeks restoration of funds

Bay St. Louis city fathers turned sympathetic, if later helpless ears, to the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Monday.

Chamber president Perry Gibson seeking to have the city reconsider its $50 per month cut in the 1975 chamber budget received only slight encouragement after making a personal appeal in council chambers Monday.

Gibson's request was based primarily on the fact that the Chamber had put together its budget based on last year's appropriation of $100 per month from the city of Bay St. Louis.

"We know that we are to blame," Gibson said, "because we did not appear before the council at budget time with our request." But, Gibson continued, the Chamber had not anticipated any cut in its budget appropriation from the city and through oversight had not made a personal appeal.

Gibson said the Chamber was presently operating on a $17,000 annual budget.

Gibson said that the city of Waveland contributes $60 per month to the Chamber but also operates the Waveland Hospitality Center which he said "is a big help to us."

Mayor Warren Carver told Gibson that at present the outlook did not look bright, but in October, Carver said, the city could possibly rearrange overruns and underruns to cover the budget request.

In other business the council agreed to advertise an amendment to change city ordinances requiring all city lounges to close at 12 a.m. on week nights and 2 a.m. on weekends. The ordinance amendment was requested by Jack Manerian, local lounge owner, who asked the city to establish hours of 2 a.m. for weeknights and 3 a.m. on weekends and holidays.

The council agreed to advertise the ordinance changes to test public opinion and indicate that if no opposition was voiced they would approve the amendment.

No further action was taken this week concerning a request for funds for the Senior Babe Ruth League. The council

Dupont foresees preliminary work starting in Delisle within weeks

By DAVID PIERSON

Larry Kniffin, project coordinator of DuPont's pigment's department, said Wednesday that preliminary work leading to the construction of a $125 million titanium dioxide plant north of the Bay of St. Louis will begin within a few weeks. However, Kniffin declined to set a specific date on when the actual construction will begin.

Kniffin said that within the next few weeks local contractors will begin clearing the area of underbrush and diseased trees. "We want to prepare the area's buffer zone," said Kniffin, "and make the site more attractive." Contracts dealing with the site clearing, Kniffin said, will be open to bids by local contractors.

Signs bearing the "DuPont" logo will also be erected within a few weeks to mark the site.

Beat 5 Justice race draws Darrell Favre

Darrell L. Favre, Rt. 3, Box 240, Bay St. Louis, has announced he will be a candidate in the August Democratic Primary for Justice of the Peace for Beat Five.

Favre, 40, is a native of Bay St. Louis and a graduate of Gulfport High School. Before becoming a building contractor Favre's business background included Pointing to a recent upturn in fibers, paint, and plastics, Kniffin said that the economic indicators affecting the construction of a pigments plant are becoming favorable.

"We're encouraged because we're in the commodity market, and all the analysts think we've hit the bottom (in recession) and that now we'll see a gradual upturn, probably beginning in the third fiscal quarter. But right now, we're waiting, getting prepared for the actual construction and doing all the preliminary work."

Several months ago DuPont officials said that the construction of the pigments plant would be delayed and DuPont officials would monitor the economic indicators to determine when to begin plant construction.

"Usually by this stage," said Kniffin, "we have begun the actual construction, but because of the economic situation, we're still doing the preliminary work of clearing the buffer zone."

In another development, the Army Corps of Engineers has rescheduled a public hearing for June 19 in Gulfport's Westside Community Center which will consider DuPont's permit application to place a pipeline to carry the plant's waste discharges. The hearing was originally scheduled for April 30 in Bay St. Louis.

Over 500 Hancock County residents and guests enjoyed a catfish picnic to celebrate the opening of McLeod Memorial Park at ceremonies at the park site Friday, May 16. Rae

State receives McLeod deed at park site ceremony

Over 500 Hancock County residents and federal, state and local officials were present to witness the official transfer of the 328-acre McLeod Memorial park from the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation to the state of Mississippi Friday, May 16. The transfer came on the park grounds near Kiln, Mississippi.

Hugh Watson, Assistant Regional Director of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation from Atlanta, presented the certificate of transfer to Rae Sanders, representing the state for Governor William Waller who was unable to attend. Watson also announced an initial grant from the federal bureau of $75,000 for development of the park by the Pearl River Basin Development District.

Watson said the $75,000 grant would be a 50 percent matching fund program from the Land and Water Conservation department for a five year development period. Planned improvements include a group picnic pavilion, a swimming pool complex, trails, boat ramps and other water facilities.

The land grant, formerly known as the Bosworth estates, was made by the National Space Technology Laboratories under the Legacy of Parks Program which provides for the transfer of surplus federal property to state and local governments for use as recreational areas. McLeod Park is the eighth such facility transferred to Mississippi under the program.

NSTL manager Jackson Balch said that plans for the transfer of the property were begun May 25, 1972. Balch was recognized at the ceremonies by master of ceremonies Norton Haas, Sr., a member of the Pearl River Basin Development District, as the main force behind the transfer which has been in the planning stages for the past three years.

East Hancock volunteers acquire engine and fire house

The East Hancock County Volunteer Fire Department serving the Shoreline Park area has recently received a fourth fire engine donated by the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

Several different individuals and local companies contributed to the donation of the new truck including a 1,200 gallon tank donated by fire department captain Carol Landry, welding and supports, sand blasting and painting donated by Jackson Landing Shipyards, pipework donated by the Mississippi National Guard, mirrors by Casanova and Sons, FM radio donated by the Hancock Firemen's Association, and signs and lettering by Tommy Marsh. In addition to the new truck the volunteer fire department is in the process of constructing a fire house in Shoreline park. Ground for the building was donated jointly by Hancock County Beat Four Supervisor Bully Zengarling and Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca. Material will come out of county revenue sharing funds and labor is being donated free by the U. S. Seabees. Captain Carol Landry estimated that the building would be completed by June 1.

The volunteer fire department, under the direction of fire chief Jay Marsh, presently have ten firefighters and a membership of 80 to 90 Shoreline Park residents. Recently the department has received some funds for equipment out of revenue sharing, but firefighters supply most equipment themselves, Landry said. Maintenance on the trucks is also the job of the volunteers, he said.

"Right now we are trying to get all of the residents to join the association," Landry said. "The wives are just as important as the men, too. One of our members, Mrs. Jean Seafide, knows how to drive the trucks and operate the pumps."

Landry said that membership in the association is offered for a fee of $5 per year. Non-members are charged

$45 for stopping fires on their property, he said. "I think that is a pretty cheap fire insurance, just $5 a year," Landry said. "Right now we serve about 2,000 residents, but only 80 belong to the association. We hope to convince them all to join this year."

Bay-Waveland Legonnaires plan Memorial Day service

American Legion Post 139 has issued an invitation to all residents of the area to attend Memorial Day services May 26 at 10 a.m. at St. Mary's cemetery in Bay St. Louis.

The annual Memorial Day observance has been a part of the American scene for more than 100 years, Commander Clayton E. Thompson of Clement R. Bontemps Post 139 explained.

In 1868, General John A. Logan of the Grand Army of the Republic (GAR) issued his historic order for such an observance which established the tradition of public ceremonies to respect comrades who died in defense of their country.

For many years after the civil war, the GAR in the north and the Confederate Veterans in the South took charge of Memorial Day ceremonies in their respective communities. When these organizations became unable to carry on actively these rites, which includes the decoration of all known grave sites, the American Legion played an important part in perpetuation of the annual observance.

Although it began as an occasion to commemorate the dead of all wars, Memorial Day has since become a time for the decoration of graves of family and friends.

In urging the widest possible participation in the services, Commander Thompson referred to the following excerpt from General Logan's original order:

"Let no avarice or neglect, no ravages of time testify to present or coming generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided republic."

In issuing an official proclamation for the observance, Mayor Warren J. Carver has called upon every household and business in Bay St. Louis to display the United States flag in proud tribute to Memorial Day.

Serving and saving

Members of the Hancock County Disabled American Veterans have opened a Thrift Shop at Six Acres Restaurant on Highway 90 in Waveland. Customers and persons wishing to leave donations may come to the shop which is open 24 hours a day. Mrs. Thelma Dickson, DAV president, said the shop would sell items for a 20 percent commission if a person did not wish to donate them.

DAR chapter hears national society resolutions

The Gulfcoast Chapter, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, heard resolutions passed by their Continental Congress when they met May 7 in the home of Mrs. Fred Sinquefeld in Gulfport.

Alternately reading and giving discussion on various resolutions were Mrs. Roy J. Jones, immediate past-regent, of Gulfport and Mrs. Nunez C. (Joe) Pilet of Bay St. Louis who serves as public relations official for the group.

At the close of the National Continental Congress, held in Washington in mid-April, the full text of the resolutions adopted by the NSDAR was made available for press-release and copies filed with the United States Senate body. Resolutions endorsed by the group included "Red Ink Spending," which urged that deficit spending be curtailed, and a resolution called "FOOD AND AGRICULTURE" which urged that consumers be alerted to the "fact that the proliferating governmental controls on the American farmer are causing food shortages and creating higher prices."

Another resolution called for repeal of the 26th amendment which would restore the former Constitutional order of succession to the Office of the President as established in the 12th Amendment.

Other resolutions adopted by the Continental Congress dealt with Gun Control, Deteriorating Defenses of the United States, Immigration and Illegal Aliens Laws, Nationalization of Oil Industry, allocations and obstacles to new domestic exploration; opposition to confiscatory tax threats and a recommendation to restore an oil depletion allowance and the construction of more oil storage facilities.

LB Council awaits opinion

LONG BEACH, Miss. — A written opinion from Attorney General A. F. Summer on a point of controversy that has been a consistent topic at past council meetings is forthcoming on May 30, according to Long Beach City Attorney Harold DeMetz.

The point stems from whether or not a payment of $200 a month truck and travel expenses to Water and Sewer Commissioner Jimmy Savarese was approved by all aldermen and agreed upon. Mayor Sam Maxwell and three aldermen maintain that the payments were agreed on by all the aldermen. Jimmy Moran and Sal Guiffria have questioned the legality of the payment and have called for the opinion.

In other business the city council:

Approved Long Beach electrician Al Krol to replace city electrical inspector Jim Crawford who resigned.

Awarded Ewing Fence Co. the contract to erect fencing around the lot adjacent to the city barn. Ewing's bid was $1,225.71.

Gave Alderman Michael Rutledge permission to purchase chemicals for mosquito control, chemicals and a pump for weed killing.

Decided to replace the air conditioning condenser in the St. Patrick's church trailer where senior citizens meet.

Power company gives advice

Mississippi Power Company Manager Perry Gibson has advised residents of Bay St. Louis and Waveland that utility bills can be reduced this summer by setting thermostats at 78 degrees instead of 72 degrees.

"A few degrees does make a difference," he said. "For each degree below 78, the air conditioning unit will use about 10 percent more electricity."

Gibson also said that electricity can be conserved by checking and cleaning air conditioning filters regularly each month. He also said proper insulation can prevent a loss of cool air during the summer months. Six inches in the ceiling and four inches in walls is the suggested insulation.

"Awnings, shutters and drapes over windows will help provide the best protection from heat from direct sunlight," he said.

Gibson also listed some other precautions that should be taken including proper attic ventilation, light colored roofing material, shade trees and shrubbery and properly fitted and weather-stripped doors and windows.

Burglary suspects cleared of charges

Two local men, Harry Bourgeois, 19, of Bay St. Louis and Paul Lombardino, 26, of Waveland were cleared of burglary charges and charges of possession of marijuana last week at a preliminary hearing before Judge Lucien Gex.

The two men were arrested May 6 by Waveland police after a search of a house on McKinley St. where Lombardino resided revealed several items of stolen property reported missing after recent burglaries in Waveland.

Judge Gex said Wednesday that evidence presented at the preliminary hearing was not sufficient to bring the two men to trial on either the burglary or the marijuana charges.

Waveland police chief Donald Dorn said police were in the process of following up leads to the identity of the burglars.

Several items found in the Lombardino home on McKinley St. in Waveland were identified by the owners, including five stolen bicycles and a set of stereo speakers. Chief Dorn said there were still a number of stolen bicycles and various pieces of stereo equipment found in the search that have not yet been identified.

Antique store burglarized

Pass Christian police are currently investigating a burglary of the Carriage Trade Antique Shop on Highway 90 in Pass Christian which occurred sometime between Friday evening and Saturday morning.

Store manager, Mrs. Jack Pritchard, said several thousand dollars worth of antique furnishings and 15 pieces of Imari, an expensive type of oriental porcelain, were taken in the robbery.

Listed as missing are a Victorian sofa valued at $850, a Davenport walnut desk, $750, four Victorian chairs, $450, a round table, $1,250, and a shelf clock, $350. Also taken was $30 kept in a cash box in the shop.

"They were very neat robbers," said Mrs. Pritchard. "They just broke the latch by jiggling it up and down, and then they moved some of the furniture around clearing a path to the door." Police found a stocking cap apparently left by the burglars which investigators said was probably used as a glove.

Pass Christian Police Chief Edward Alley said that no fingerprints had been found.

Mrs. Pritchard said she felt the burglars had some knowledge of antiques because they had selected some of the most expensive and unusual pieces.

"All of the missing pieces are choice pieces," she said, "and they are all compatible, all in the Victorian style."

Ford had to act

On the question of our ship being captured by the Cambodians - our merchant vessel and crew - something just had to be done.

Diplomatic efforts through the U. N. and through the other ambassadorial places failed to bring any results. No response was given by the Cambodians of any kind. So the President had to act. There was no recourse left except force. The big question was: "What force and how much force would he use?" It's the old common sense proposition. If you're having to resort to force, if you use too little you're worse off than when you started.

I approved his decision to send the Marines into the ship and on the island, too, and also to hit those Cambodian military installations with our air power. Now that was a hard one, in a way, but after all we were going in there to protect and regain these American crewmen and we were sending other Americans in there after them - the Marines. Hitting their military installations was merely a protection of the crewmen, as well as, the Marines that we were sending in - all of them being American citizens. Otherwise they would have all been exposed to this Cambodian military force that was present in this area.

When this matter was outlined to us at the White House, I approved it then and told the President so and the group including this last step of hitting the military power that was there. Otherwise, it could have been a long, drawn out battle.

The biggest thing of all about this entire event is that we've turned the matter entirely around. Every nation now will know what would be our reaction should they capture and imprison our crew members, in or out of uniform, if the ship were where it had a right to be as was ours in this case - in international waters on a commercial, peaceful mission.

This is going to clear the atmosphere a whole lot. I think it already has. No nation anywhere around the world could have any real respect for us if we had not had the courage to protect our own ship and our own crewmen wherever they are, assuming they are in a lawful place. If we had done less and not used enough military force, it would have been another debacle. In other words, we went in to conquer this time and we did. I use the word conquer to master the situation. We're not wanting anyone's country or anyone's territory. We merely went after what was ours.

Even though I regret greatly the loss of life to Marines, they really died for a great cause, that is, the cause of the American people. We've freed ourselves fully now from the belief that would have been well founded by other nations, had we not acted, that they could run over us, bloody our nose and even capture our men with impunity and no fear of reprisal. I hope and I believe this does go a long way in settling this uncertain situation. I think it will be a long time before anything like this happens again.

This also gave an illustration of the proper workings of the War Powers Bill that was passed in 1973. The President had room to act in the proper case to rescue our seamen and the ship. He was not restricted by that Act. He merely had to make a report as to his actions to the Congress by a prescribed time which he did. Furthermore, this was a case where there was proper contact and coordination, I think, between the Executive and the Congress, in that the chairmen of certain committees, including myself as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, were given information from time to time about these developments, what the problem was, the critical nature of the facts and the alternatives of what could be done. In this way, I was representing the Committee on Armed Services.

At the conference at the White House before the plan was put into action, the President very properly said that when all the facts were developed the problem stopped at his doorstep as Commander-in-Chief under our Constitution and he had to make a decision. That's what he did. He made a courageous one which proved to be successful.

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

CAMBODIAN INCIDENT

In recent weeks I have been asking myself, like a lot of Americans, how long is the United States of America going to be kicked around? I suppose part of that feeling was a result of the recent developments in South Vietnam, and a concern about America's position throughout the world.

For too long now, this country has allowed itself to be abused by countries all over the world, both large and small. In fact, I have often wondered which side the State Department is actually on. I think it is important that we take a look at what's been happening, in a series of developments, which were really insults to the most powerful nation in the world.

The Viet Cong demand the return of U. S. military equipment used to fight their aggressions in South Vietnam and then used by refugees to escape the Communist take-over.

Arab nations seized oil fields and equipment developed with U. S. funds and know-how, and then turn around and extort vast sums and political concessions from us, using those very oil resources.

India, with millions of its peasants going hungry, and being supported with U. S. dollars, has exploded its own expensive atomic device. And then turns around and accuses the United States of "warmongering" when we resume arms sales after a 10-year embargo to its neighbor.

U. S. diplomatic envoys are murdered without cause or reprisals. Consider the roster of the last three years alone: John P. Eagan, Honorary Consul in Cordoba, Argentina; Roger P. Davies, Ambassador to Cyprus; Cleo A. Noel, Ambassador to the Sudan.

The recent incident of the seizure of a U. S. flag merchant ship, the Mayaguez, brought this country to the point that we had to take a firm stand. For the first time in about a year, when I read the Washington Post Thursday morning and saw that the Marines had done their job and had retrieved the Mayaguez and her crew, I was proud of our country's position.

We have been kicked around long enough. We have more than proven that we can exercise a quiet restraint in the fact of attacks by aggressive political entities. Having made our point, it was now incumbent upon us to also exercise the swift and direct action which is the best response to aggressive overtures of Communist countries.

President Ford clearly and properly labeled the act of the Cambodians in seizing the Mayaguez as piracy. Immediately after the seizure he took firm, diplomatic steps to have the ship returned; and when that failed, he took swift and courageous action to regain the vessel. I am sure it was a difficult decision and one not without many dangers. But the result was one that this country badly needed. Now, instead of a series of similar and even worse incidents, the world will sit up and take notice. It is now evident that the United States will unite behind its leaders when decisive action is merited and executed.

In the years to come I am quite sure that our great young Republic will be more hesitant to become involved in wars in other parts of the world when our own national interests may not be directly involved. However, I think that we should make it clear now that our prior restraint in the face of repeated provocation will be replaced by direct action appropriate to the circumstances and to the need to protect our national interests.

Like in the TV commercial, I feel like saying, after this slap in the face, "Thanks! I needed that."

Social Security

MEDICARE CLAIMS PROCESS

"How do I get paid for services I receive under Medicare?" "Is there a special form I have to send in, and where do I send it?" "What can I do if I have a complaint about my payments?"

These can be troublesome questions to Medicare beneficiaries, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport.

"The answers," he says, "can be found in the new edition of Your Medicare Handbook, which was mailed to Medicare beneficiaries and to health care professionals and facilities in late 1974. The new handbook contains a detailed explanation of the Medicare claims process.

"Under the hospital insurance part of Medicare," Wofford said, "the beneficiary does not have to apply for payment. The hospital, skilled nursing facility, or home health agency which provided the services submits the claim for payment.

"But it is important," he said, "that the beneficiary show his Medicare card to the facility so that it can copy down his health insurance claim number just as it's shown on his card."

Under the medical insurance part of Medicare, the claim process is a little more complicated. There are two methods of payment.

The medical insurance payment can be made to the doctor or supplier who provided the services or supplies. This method is called assignment. Or the payment can be made to the beneficiary.

"Regardless of which method is used," Wofford said, "a Request for Medicare Payment form must be filled out and sent to the Medicare Carrier."

The carrier is an organization selected by the Social Security Administration to handle medical insurance claims for a particular area. The new Medicare handbook contains a list of carriers and their addresses. Beneficiaries can get copies of the Request for Medicare Payment form from their doctor or supplier or from any social security office.

"Under the assignment method, the doctor or supplier submits the claim for payment," Wofford said. "The beneficiary should complete and sign Part I of the form. The doctor or supplier will complete Part II and send the form to the carrier. Medicare then pays the doctor or supplier.

"If the doctor or supplier does not accept assignment, the beneficiary submits the claim, and Medicare will pay him. Again, he completes and signs Part I of the form. Then he should ask the person who provided the services either to complete Part II or to give him an itemized bill to send in with the form.

"An itemized bill must include the date he received the services, the place where he received them, a description of the services, the nature of his illness or injury (diagnosis), the charge for each service, and his name and health insurance claim number exactly as it's shown on his Medicare card. If the bill doesn't include all this information, payment will be delayed."

Under medical insurance, no payment can be made until the $60 yearly deductible is met. Wofford suggests that the beneficiary send in a Request for Medicare Payment form as soon as his bills come to $60. Then he should send in future bills as soon as he gets them so payment can be made promptly.

"It's also a good idea," Wofford said, "for beneficiaries to keep a record of their claim in case they ever want to inquire about it."

Whenever a claim is submitted under hospital insurance or medical insurance, Medicare will send the beneficiary a notice to the decision made on the claim. What can he do if he disagrees with the decision?

"Under the law, the beneficiary has the right of appeal," Wofford said. "If he disagrees with a decision on a claim - whether it's about the amount Medicare will pay or about the services he received - he has the right to ask for a review of the decision. The notice he gets from Medicare telling him about the decision on his claim explains exactly what appeal steps he can take."

The new Medicare handbook also describes the appeals process under Medicare.

Wofford suggests that beneficiaries keep their Medicare handbook handy so that they will have it whenever they need information about applying for payment. "But," he adds, "any time they have questions that aren't answered in the handbook, they can call any social security office. They should also call us if they did not receive a copy of the new handbook."

Forgive us our debts?

Officials of Hancock County, on all levels, have gotten themselves and the rest of the citizenry of the county into a nice pickle over repayment of Camille loans to the state of Mississippi.

Because of their indecision to spend the money when it was appropriated in 1969, officials in this county and in several other counties now face a two mill tax for as long as 30 years.

Hope was that the state legislature would forgive the loans, but as Hancock County Board Attorney Sam Parve has stated, "it's like waving a red flag in front of a bull when you take the money and invest it, drawing more interest from the investment than is being charged by the state."

That may sound like good banking, but not very good ethics for people entrusted with these funds to help rebuild communities devastated by one of the worst natural disasters in this century.

The people of Hancock County had a right to expect those officials to spend this money, totalling $675,000, to benefit that period of reconstruction...not bury it in their backyard hoping to make a nice fat profit off of it later.

As it happens, the supervisors' decision to spend the money has come too late. Rightfully the state of Mississippi has asked the counties to return the unspent funds and to submit plans to repay the original loans by June 6.

It is a double shame that the members of the Hancock County School board did not utilize $180,000 given by them to good purpose when they had the chance. Even the failure of two bond issues is no real excuse for this money not being spent five years ago to upgrade facilities in the county's school system.

Now we are in a sorry mess. Faced with double taxation if you happen to live in Waveland or Bay St. Louis. These bodies likewise received huge chunks of GEC funds. Bay St. Louis received $358,936 of which $283,574.19 remains unexpended to this day.

Why was this money never used? It's a question we feel deserves an answer and we hope the people of Hancock County ask their officials the questions.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

Our newspaper recently ran an editorial about "What's Right With Mississippi", and on the same day a local lady who for many years has been prominent in promoting local affairs gave us a dissertation on the lack of interest shown by our residents in public problems. Which reminded us of an article we had been reading about the life of one of the earliest settlers in the Choctaw Purchase in the 1840s and what he and his neighbors had done to build a solid foundation for the future greatness of the State.

Back in those days, although we read much about the doings of the big planters, statistics show that only 8 percent of the state's population owned large estates and slaves. Most of the settlers were hard working small farmers. One of them was Ferdinand Lawrence Steel, who was an unusual man for that day in that he kept a diary of his activities from 1838 to 1846. For the first year or two his daily work was the usual development of his 170-acre farm, but gradually he began to devote more attention to self-improvement and family affairs, and we begin to see him as a real member of the little town of Grenada.

Young Steel's life on the farm must have been a full one. In addition to raising and harvesting the products of the land, managing his household and working with his neighbors for the welfare of the little community, he never relaxed in his determination to learn. His almost unvarying schedule included rising at five, prayers and reading for an hour, household chores, labor on the farm until noon, rest and reading some useful book such as Blackstone's Commentaries or Jones' Chemistry until two o'clock. From then until sundown or later, Steel again worked in the fields, then did more chores, prayed and ate supper. From then until half-past eight the family chatted, read from the Bible and sang hymns, and went to bed at nine, though Steel himself usually stayed up later to continue his reading.

Steel's diary records a steady development of his interest in church matters; in fact, he ended his journal after eight years to become an itinerant Methodist preacher. Nine years later he became a farmer again in DeSoto county, where he died in 1873, aged just under 60 years. Reuben Davis, writing of early days in the State, observes that "The Mississippian has been caricatured into a swaggering rowdy... But it is equally true that the great body of the settlers were sober, industrious men... whose hands were as ready to extend help as they were to resist violence and oppression." Ferdinand Steel was just a small farmer and an itinerant preacher, but of such stock great communities are made.

If you should be asked to name the most venerated symbol of freedom in America, probably without hesitation you would say: THE LIBERTY BELL on display in Independence Hall, Philadelphia."

If you were asked to quote the inscription on the bell and tell where it originated, perhaps you would have to think a bit. You might even have to say, "Sorry, I do not know."

The inscription on the Liberty Bell was taken from the Bible. Turn to Leviticus 25th Chapter and 10th verse and read:

"And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof..."

On July 8, 1776 the Liberty Bell, treasured relic of early days of American independence, was rung along with other church bells - this great bell, weighing more than 2,080 pounds helped to ring out the glad tidings of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

In 1752 Pennsylvania bought this bell for the sum of $300. The bell was first cast in England. It broke in ringing after its arrival and was recast in Philadelphia from the same metal and with the same inscription. It broke again on July 8, 1835 while tolling during the funeral of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the United States.

The Liberty bell, now housed in the Tower Room of Independence Hall is no longer rung. It has been struck on very special occasions - a special sound equipment picks up and amplifies the tone of the bell when it is struck.

The two devised a scheme whereby factory-made goods were offered at low figures, $1 down in advance and as a prize the inducement was made to give an electric lamp.

The orders secured were many, but to this day no one in Bay St. Louis has ever heard from the Louis brothers again.

Letters sent to an address where they could be contacted were of course returned to the Bay post office marked "no such persons at this address."

Joseph Taconi is 73 years old, lives on Cue Street, is a native of Hancock County and a man of distinction. To begin with, Cue Street and its sister street named Gex could possibly qualify in Ripley's "Believe It or Not" as the shortest streets in Mississippi. They are both narrow, single block long, one-way streets that frame Hancock County's Court House square — bounded on the other two sides by Main and Court Streets. In addition to the distinction of living on the shortest street, Joe Taconi is the one and only person whose address is Cue Street. And the house in which he lives is remarkable.

Time was when the residence of Joe Taconi listed as 108 Cue Street was a store. In those days it was on a corner facing Main Street. That was some 27 years ago. Joe says the house is good and solid — made from heart pine — which is a pretty good testimonial in favor of the quality of lumber coming from the Southern pine saw mills. Joe said he made some minor repairs to the house, like patching the porch uprights, but nothing major. Joe Taconi was born right here in Hancock County. His father's name was Charles. There were five children in the family. Joe is the only survivor.

The Taconi name is an old one in Bay St. Louis. Joe's great-great grandfather, Frank Taconi, Sr., had a tavern, a regular meeting place for boatmen who fished for shrimp and oysters and met at "Jambon's Tavern" to swap tall tales, quench their thirst and tote off a gallon of wine in a kerosene can.

In French "Jambon" means ham. Joe doesn't remember how his great-great grandfather got that name. He just knows it "stuck."

Although in those days there were no laws to govern the operations of a tavern and Jambon's tavern was open every Sunday as well, the bar room did close Sunday mornings during the hour of high mass.

Just about everybody in Bay St. Louis knows Joe Taconi. Prior to his retirement, Joe worked some 42 years for the city of Bay St. Louis. He was with the Utilities System, and he remembers well when Charles Traub was Mayor and present sheriff Sylvan Ladner's father was one of the Aldermen.

Joe retired in 1965 and since that time he has enjoyed several hobbies. His narrow little "store-house" sits on about half of the 50 foot lot and the rest of the space — every inch of it — has something growing.

Climbing the porch is an asparagus fern with tendrils reaching the roof. In the front bed are Easter lilies "so thick some have to be moved out." The same is true of the large and various colored chrysanthemums. Joe brings them up to the front fence to bloom, then digs them out and replaces them with new plants coming into bloom. In that way the fence row stays colorful.

Sunflowers with seed heads weighing up to a pound and a half or two pounds just grow helter-skelter along the front fence. Joe just lets the seeds ripen on the plants and the birds are welcome. Joe likes birds. He has a bird feeder and puts sunflower seed on it, too. Jays, woodpeckers, squirrels, sparrows — just "different kinds of birds" drop by on a regular schedule for a free feed.

Mostly Joe's garden is devoted to tomatoes, peppers, egg plants, squash and "some" fig trees toward the back. Normally Joe has a tremendous crop of tomatoes and he takes the culture of them seriously. Plenty of fertilizer, cutting off "suckers," spraying for tomato bugs, staking with up to three stakes per plant and when the blooms appear using a spray to set the blooms and insure full fruit.

"Don't say NUTHIN about my tomatoes this year," Joe says embarrassed.

"Why I'm downright ashamed of them little ole shriveled up blossoms fixing to drop off. Planted too early — all this cool weather and rain and hardly any bees at all." Sitting there on the side porch and looking out over the tomato patch, Joe started reminiscing about life in Bay St. Louis when he was a lad. Yes, he worked for the Peerless Canning Factory — stood right where the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club is now. Joe made seven cents an hour and that meant two dollars a week. Plenty of money for a 17 year old in those days.

The factory canned in addition to shrimp, oysters and crabs such things as sweet potatoes, figs and okra. Mostly the workers were Bohemians — came out of Baltimore and had their own camp. It was on Felicite Street and workers were furnished free stoves, free wood and their camp houses. Some of the women working in the factory earned up to five dollars a day, big money for those times.

"Folks along the Beach objected to the factory," Joe recalled, "didn't like that whistle blowing at three o'clock every morning and waking them up. Didn't like the smells from the factory either." "That whistle sounded like music to working folks in need of grocery money," Joe added.

"There was a big shell pile from the factory," Joe said, and explained those shells were used for surfacing the roads. "Talk about dust!" he exclaimed. Shells were cheap — there were plenty of them. A man could go down to the shell pile with a mule and wagon and get shells for a nickle a barrel.

"Before the trawlers came netting the sea life, Joe said, shrimp were plentiful, large and cheap. They retailed in the markets at two pounds for a quarter, and Joe said by casting a net anywhere along the front shrimp were to be caught in abundance. "I used to sell two one-pound coffee cans jam-packed for a quarter," Joe declared.

Yes, 50 and 60 years ago, the Bay of St. Louis really produced fine seafood. This year there's even a shortage of honey bees!

No shortage of muscle

Mornings find Joe, who is a youthful 73 years old, turning the soil in his garden, attending to his numerous flowering plants, or making minor repairs to the 108 Cue Street address where he enjoys the days of his retirement.

ETV repeats summer credit courses

Colleges and universities throughout Mississippi will again participate in Mississippi ETV's college credit program beginning June 1.

The Mississippi Authority for Educational Television will offer repeat broadcasts of two college credit courses, "Dimensions in Cultures" and "The Consumer Experience."

The Mississippi Television Council on Higher Education at its last meeting recommended the continuation of college credit courses over ETV during the summer months. The recommendation was based on the "success experienced during the first efforts of the council to offer college credit over ETV," said ETV director of education Bennie Lucroy.

Lucroy also said that more than 300 Mississippians took advantage of the ETV college credit courses in the spring semester.

The ETV "summer term" will be 11 weeks in length, with three telelessons per course offered each week. Repeat broadcasts of each lesson in the courses will be offered on a one-week delay basis to allow for vacation conflicts, Lucroy said.

"Dimensions in Cultures," a three-hour introductory course in cultural anthropology, examines the process of culture and personality development. The lessons will air at 1:30 p.m. and at 10 p.m. Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Sunday lessons will repeat at 4:30 p.m. Saturdays; Tuesday lessons will repeat at 5 p.m. Saturdays; and Thursday lessons will repeat at 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

Included in "Dimensions in Cultures" are filmed interviews with Drs. Walter Goldschmidt, Hane Goodall and Margaret Mead.

"The Consumer Experience," a three-hour course in personal financial management, emphasizes a constructive approach to consumers' rights. The lessons will air at 1:30 p.m. and at 10 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Monday lessons will repeat at 4:30 p.m. Sundays; Wednesday lessons will repeat at 5 p.m. Sundays; and Friday lessons will repeat at 5:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Interested persons should contact the junior or senior college or university of their choice. Textbooks will be provided through local college bookstores.

They must be certified for school benefits if they want an advance GI Bill check when school starts next semester, he said.

Cook said the Veterans Administration can have the veteran's first GI Bill check waiting for him at his school at the start of the school term if he completes his certification early.

Veterans who intend to attend college during the summer or fall term are advised to certify early said Merlyn J. Cook, Assistant VA Center Director for Jackson Regional Office.

Waller plans second Mid-East mission

Governor Bill Waller said last week that the State of Mississippi will sponsor another trade mission to the Middle East this fall.

Following a meeting with several participants in the recent mission, Waller said a follow-up mission would allow the state to take full advantage of the April mission.

The Governor said orders to be filled by August as a result of the mission would total over $200 million.

Waller also announced a state-wide conference on housing and wood products in Jackson next month to bring together segments of the timber and housing industry to develop an approach to supplying the demand in the Middle East for Mississippi wood products.

Waller said that officials in the Middle East expressed a need for prefabricated homes, in addition to accessory products such as doors, windows, roofing materials, and furnishings.

"We could easily become the world's leader in housing products," the Governor said. "With over sixty percent of our land area in commercial forests, we must move ahead to process this valuable raw material in order to give our people more jobs and to receive a greater return from our natural resources."

STATE ACCEPTS McLEOD DEED

Mississippi and federal officials Friday participated in ceremonies marking the transfer of McLeod Memorial Park which was part of the National Space Technology Laboratories property in Hancock county and which will now be used as a recreational area.

Rae Sanders, of the Mississippi Park Commission, accepted the deed to the land for the state.

The 328 acres, formerly used as a recreational facility for NASA employees was declared excess by the federal government in April, 1973. With assistance from the Mississippi Park Commission's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, the land has now been deeded to the Pearl River Basin Development District.

A spokesman for the District said that the new recreation facility will be developed at a total price of $254,000.

District spokesman, Keith Harkins, said, "The District's participation is under its Pearl River Boatway Program, which will be a series of parks constructed adjacent to and near the Pearl and its main tributaries from Nantah Waiya to NASA."

Harkins said the total development plan for the park over a ten year period is expected to be over $1,000,000.

WALLER AUTHORIZES STAMP ISSUE

Governor Waller and officials of the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission have announced a program to raise funds to protect endangered and threatened species of wildlife in the state.

Waller said that the Commission has issued, under authority of the Endangered Species Conservation Act of 1974, a limited edition of 5,000 endangered species stamps to be sold to help fund wildlife programs. He noted that Mississippi has become the second state in the nation to undertake such a project.

Avery Wood, Director of the Commission, said that the official endangered species stamp, a four-color reproduction of two Mississippi Sandhill Cranes in flight, is available in sheets of five for $25 or for $5 each from the Commission. Stamp collectors, sportsmen, conservationists, and others who purchase the stamps will also receive a four-inch square decal depicting the same crane by free-lance photographer Joe Lee of Jackson.

Wood said that the stamps could be ordered from the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission, Endangered Species, P. O. Box 451, Jackson, 39205.

STATE LAUNCHES STUDENT INTERN PROGRAM

Dr. Milton Baxter, Director of the Governor's Office of Education and Training, has announced that 50 state university students have been chosen to participate in the Mississippi Student Intern Program for this summer.

Baxter said that the program will last eight weeks, from June 9 - August 1, and that the students will be placed in full-time jobs in various state agencies and organizations during the period.

Baxter said that several state agencies and organizations are participating in this year's program including the Mississippi Department of Youth Services, the Mississippi State Board of Health, Vocational Rehabilitation for the Blind, Mississippi State Hospital at Whitfield, Mississippi Treasury Department, Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, Mississippi Authority for Educational Television, Mississippi Library Commission, Mississippi Division of Public Welfare, Mississippi Park Commission, Division of Drug Misuse, and the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

Stennis urges new immigration laws

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Mississippi Senator John C. Stennis called for a revision of current immigration laws to stem the increasing influx of illegal aliens into the United States in remarks before the Senate last week.

Citing U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates ranging from 5 to 12 million illegal aliens, Stennis said the Immigration Service estimates that more than a million of these illegal aliens hold jobs Americans could and would have if the jobs were vacant.

"The United States has always welcomed some immigrants and will continue to do so," Stennis said. "I don't intend to cast aspersions against any particular individual or group, but consideration should be given to special hardship cases that have merit."

Mississippi farmers urge purchase of lightweight beef

One way to save money at the grocery store now is to purchase cuts of meat from lightweight beef often termed "baby beef". In addition to its lower cost, lightweight beef is a very nutritious and tender product. "Baby beef" comes from seven to 10 month old animals that have just been weaned and therefore grown on a diet of milk and grass. They weigh between 400 and 600 pounds as opposed to 1000 pounds or over for the regular grain-fed beef. "Baby beef" is one step away from veal, the meat of young calves weighing 140 to 250 pounds, which is a gourmet favorite.

"Baby beef" resembles veal in color and in size. The meat is pinkish in color. The white fat cover is thin, from about one-eighth to one-fourth inch thick. Some marbling (fat within the muscle) may be present. Although "baby beef" will have similar cuts as normally seen in retail markets, these cuts will be smaller than the cuts of mature beef.

The nutritive value of "baby beef" is the same as that of mature beef. "Baby beef" is a source of high quality protein, iron, B-Vitamins, zinc, and many other trace minerals. Since "baby beef" has less fat it will also contain less calories.

Lightweight or "baby beef" can be prepared in similar ways to mature beef but a shorter cooking time should be used. The meat is tender, however, it will have a milder flavor than mature beef. An important factor in lightweight beef cookery, therefore, is to enhance and maintain the juices of the meat. This can be achieved by braising, marinating, brushing with melted fat, or using bacon strips over the top.

Roasts: In order to avoid drying out, it is recommended not to cook "baby beef" too well done. It is best cooked as a medium-done roast.

Steaks: Because the cut may be leaner than usual, it should be brushed with melted fat or butter during broiling or before panfrying. Steaks can even be successfully grilled out-of-doors, but are best if not cooked past the medium stage. If well done steaks are preferred, prepare the steaks covered as in braising to assure tenderness and to avoid excessive dry meat.

Chuck and Round: Slow braising is recommended. (Braising is to brown in a small amount of fat, season, cover and cook with one-third liquid until done.) Time for cooking varies with cuts: braised steaks - 45 min. to 1 hr.; pot roast - 2 to 2 1/2 hr.; stews - 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 hr.

Put "baby beef" to work for you by using the following recipes:

EASY SWISS STEAK
2 tsp. salad oil
1 1/2 pounds round steak
2 large onions, thinly sliced
10 1/2 oz. can condensed tomato soup
1/2 soup can of water
In a large skillet, heat salad oil. Brown steak well on both sides; remove meat. To drippings in skillet, add sliced onions and cook until lightly browned. Return meat to skillet and over this pour tomato soup and water; heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 35 to 45 minutes or until tender. Makes six servings.

ROAST AND POTATOES
Sirloin Tip Roast
1 package dry onion soup mix
1 can cream of chicken soup

4 medium potatoes, peeled
Place roast in heavy casserole with a close fitting lid. Sprinkle dry onion soup mix over roast, and spoon chicken soup over all. Place potatoes around edge of roast. Place lid on casserole and bake in a 325 degree F. oven til done. It will take about one-and-one-half to two hours for a three pound roast; check for degree of doneness you prefer.

Additional recipes featuring "baby beef" may be obtained by writing to Gulf Coast Consumer Services Division, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, P.O. Box 615, Pascagoula, 39567.

Mississippi delicacy

Mississippi grass-fed "baby beef" is the main ingredient of these beef kebabs. Baby beef comes from seven to 10 month old overnight. One hour before preparing kebabs, place the following vegetables in the marinade:

BABY BEEF KEBABS

2 pounds beef chuck
2-3 cup salad oil
1/2 cup wine or wine vinegar
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon dry mustard

Cut chuck into two inch cubes. Combine all other ingredients; mix well. Pour marinade over meat cubes. Refrigerate several hours or String beef and vegetables alternately on 12-inch to 24-inch skewers. Leave space between tidbits on skewer, so heat reaches all. Exception: for rare beef, push close. Broil about 12 minutes for medium-rare; turn often. Makes eight servings.

Proclaiming beef week

Bay St. Louis Mayor Warren Carver signs the proclamation declaring the week of May 19-24 southern grass belt beef week. Witnessing his signature are Hancock County Agent John Smith, Hancock County Catlemen's Association president A.G. Harris and Miss Martha Gayle Peeler of the Gulf Coast Consumer Services Division of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

Food stamp increase issued

Food stamp allotments and maximum income eligibility standards will be increased by approximately five percent beginning July 1 said a spokesman of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The allotments for a four-person household will increase from $154 per month to $162 due to the results of the cost of economy food plan conducted in February which showed an increase of $8 per month for the average four-member family said the spokesman. A semi-annual report reflecting the changes in food prices is required by an amendment to the Food Stamp Act passed in 1973 as part of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act.

Mapping out prospects

take it back," said board member Johnny Banks, "because I'm not going to vote to give it up. It just isn't fair that the rural schools in the county are not going to get anything out of that entire $675,000."

Favre said that the county as a whole would benefit if the school board would return the money reducing the principal amount owed by the county. He said the county would have to levy a one mill tax in September of this year and an additional one mill tax in September of 1976 to begin repayment of the loan. Total repayment, he said, would take 15 to 20 years.

Favre said that the board had not been informed of the pending deadline of Sept. 30 until an April 14 letter from Geoghegan advising officials of the June 6 deadline for repayment of the money.

"We knew we would have to pay the money back eventually," said Gex. "We should have spent that money two years ago, and now we just got caught when these people have decided to take a stand."

Favre said part of the present problem with repayment of the loan stemmed from the refusal of the board of supervisors to make interest payments on the loan during the first five years.

"When you take $675,000 of the state's money and invest it, earning more money than what they are charging you in interest, and then refuse to pay the interest on the loan, it is just like waving a red flag in a bull's face," he said.

District, said that McLeod Park is part of a series of recreation projects being planned by the district, under the "Nanih Waiya to NASA" boatway project. The project involves the creation of camp sites along the Pearl River from its source at Nanih Waiya to its mouth at the NASA installation.

"This park will be a magnificent asset to the people in this part of the state and the people from other states who will also use the facilities," Williams said. "Well planned and well constructed facilities like this one don't simply happen. The contractors and all of the workers on this facility are to be commended."

Williams added his thanks to Senator John Stennis and Representative Trent Lott for their aid on the project.

President of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Alton A. Kellar and Chancery Clerk John Rutherford were also present on the speakers stand to take part in the transfer. Kellar presented a special plaque in appreciation to Hancock County resident Norton Haas, Sr. for his work on the project.

"This park is already worth a cool half million dollars," said Rutherford. "And I think that eventually it will be a million dollar facility for Hancock County."

The park was named in honor of Albert J. McLeod and his wife Virginia "Aunt Gin" McLeod, settlers on the Jourdan River in the early 1900's. The McLeods are best remembered for the operation of a sawmill and a general store which Mrs. McLeod continued to run until her death in 1973 at the age of 95.

Following the dedication ceremonies residents and officials enjoyed a catfish luncheon under the cypress trees of the newly dedicated park.

JA offers local concert program

The Bay-Waveland Junior Auxiliary in cooperation with WPUP radio (1190) in Bay St. Louis will present "The Concert Hour," a varied music program including classic as well as popular music styles, beginning at 5 p.m. June 1.

The program, which will be aired through the summer at 5 p.m. on Sunday afternoons, will begin with a brief history of music from the Renaissance to contemporary music. Commentary written by JA members will accompany the programs.

"We hope that the program can be utilized by teachers to broaden student interest in the classics," said project chairman Mrs. H. Davis Williams. "The works of the great composers will be covered from Beethoven and Bach to Rogers and Hammerstein, and time will also be allotted for artists from Mississippi and other southern states.

Some special programs planned are works for children including "Peter and the Wolf" by Serge Prokofiev and "The Nutcracker Suite" by Peter Tchaikovsky," said Mrs. Williams.

There will also be bicentennial music including John Philip Sousa marches, and a jazz program planned in connection with the Jazz festival, she said.

The first program will be Van Cliburn playing Tchaikovsky's "Concerto Number One" and Aaron Copland's "Billy the Kid" performed by the Ballet Theatre Orchestra under conductor Joseph Levine.

"It is a game filled with sound and fury, signifying everything."

My apologies to William Shakespeare, but that misquotation, I believe, aptly describes the game of baseball as it is played by little leaguers and junior Babe Ruthers.

I remember reading in the seventh grade a poem which said that only children can play "real baseball." At the time I objected to the poem, saying that Mays, Mantle, and the Dodgers (I was a Dodger fan) also played "real baseball."

But Friday evening at the junior Babe Ruth season opener, I had to agree that only the young can play the game with sound and fury. Apparently I wasn't the only one that felt that way, for I heard many of the parents, the coaches, and other adults at the ballpark commenting on the intensity with which the boys played the game.

The game was played on a time limit of seven innings or one hour, and the players hurried to make sure they got their hour's worth of ball. The pitchers took very little time on the mound between pitches, the baserunners ran to first base on a base on balls, and the teams took very little warmup between innings. Absolutely nothing aggravated the players more than a batter who fouled off four or five balls before walking.

Sad to say, this spirit of real baseball dies or is lost somewhere in growing up. Even by high school, the eroding signs can be seen. Many of the players do not play with the same intensity, and some almost look embarrassed at playing a boys' game. Some of the players quit trying or quit the team once they are eliminated from championship possibility, and all in all, the enthusiasm for the game seems more subdued, and the play much more mechanical.

After all, they think, the game is just a game and it really signifies nothing. It will not matter tomorrow.

If any of the younger players begin to wonder if this is true, they would do well to look into the stands. For there are other people at the game besides parents. There are grown people who look wistfully at the youth playing a game they love, and the feeling there is not one of just enjoying a game but also of something quite different. It's the remembrance of things past and of the way things could have been. And these people, wondering where the time has gone between now and when they played on the field, are the real baseball fans. They realize that this game that is no longer theirs is far more significant than a bases-loaded situation in the bottom of the last inning.

Mohammed Ali was featured on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow" show the night before his successful title defense against Ron Lytle. Ali seemed calmer than usual as he sat near a hotel swimming pool and answered questions in a subdued tone.

When Snyder asked the heavyweight champion why he wasn't jumping around and shouting as he does in his Howard Cosell interviews, Ali answered simply, "You ask more intelligent questions than Cosell." Most of us Cosell-haters appreciated that pre-fight jab much more than all the blows he delivered to the body of Lytle.

Asked of his opinion of the white power structure he had attacked in his youth, Ali said, "Who am I to attack the white power structure? Just look at me, the white power structure made me a millionaire."

Ali also said on the show that he plans to defend his title every two months and plans to fight for five more years. If Ali can keep that promise, it would surely help boxing which had just recently suffered through two heavyweight champions (Joe Frazier and George Foreman) who sat on the title instead of defending it.

The Senior Babe Ruth league starts its 1975 season Sunday with a doubleheader set to begin at 3:30 p.m. at the Long Beach High School ballpark. Harrison Central will play the defending champions, the Long Beach Maroons in the first game, and Bay St. Louis-Diamondhead will clash with the Long Beach Blues in a 6 p.m. game. The fifth team in the league Pass Christian, will start play Tuesday.

BASEBALL QUIZ -- What two major league teams were involved in the largest player trade deal? Hint: both teams belonged in the old eight-team American league.

Answer to last quiz -- Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals batted .424 in 1924. That record still stands as the highest batting average ever recorded by a major leaguer. Nap Lajoie of the 1901 Philadelphia Athletics batted .422, and that mark still stands as the American League record.

The Long Beach Maroons ended Harrison Central's Sunday afternoon winning streak when they stopped the Red Rebels 13-4 in the finals of the three-day Senior Babe Ruth baseball tournament at Pass Christian's McDonald Field, May 18.

Harrison Central, which had fought its way through the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament, defeated the Pass Christian Steelers and the Bay St. Louis-Diamondhead ball clubs in back-to-back games before facing the Maroons in the finals. The other Long Beach entry, the Blues, was eliminated Saturday afternoon.

The exhibition tournament marks the beginning of the Senior Babe Ruth league season for boys aged 16-18 years.

In the tournament's opening game Friday, Harrison Central exploded for eight runs in the fourth inning to rattle the Bay St. Louis-Diamondhead team 15-4. The game was close until the eventual fourth inning when timely hits and costly errors marked the Bay St. Louis team's downfall.

Harrison Central jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but a 350-foot shot over the fence in right-center by Bill Ginn of Diamondhead cut the lead in half. Harrison Central added two more runs in the third, and Donald Corr of Bay St. Louis again halved the score with his home run to left field.

Then in the fourth inning, using just four hits and four errors, the Red Rebels scored eight times to put the game out of reach.

Ross Reyer was the winning pitcher, and Niles Blaize was tagged with the loss for Bay St. Louis.

Reyer and Mark Friloux gathered three hits apiece to aid the Red Rebel cause.

In the other Friday afternoon game, the Pass Christian Steelers also used a big fourth inning to gun down the Long Beach Blues. Showing an economy of effort, Pass Christian scored seven runs on just one hit in the fourth inning to break up a tight 5-4 ball game.

The Steelers sent ten men to the plate in the inning and had already scored five runs in the inning when catcher Mark Jenkins delivered the only hit of the inning. The Blues contributed to the seven-run outburst with three throwing errors.

Jenkins and Steve Tate got two hits for Pass Christian and Ricky Denmark got two safeties for the Blues. Kirk McDonald was the winning pitcher and Donald Pique the loser.

Taylor had a no-hitter going until Paul Stewart touched him for a single in the sixth inning. The Maroons scored early and held the lead throughout with five of their seven hits coming from the bats of Shortstop Bill Lansdale and Second baseman Bob Richards.

Myron Cook, Pass Christian's southpaw, took the loss.

Rick White of the Maroons followed his teammate Taylor's one-hit pitching performance with his own four-hit whitewashing of Harrison Central Saturday in what was to be a prelude to the finals the next day.

The Maroons got all the offense they would need in the first inning when they pushed across one run, but in the fourth they added four insurance runs, using two hits, three walks and one error to do the damage.

Bob Richards and Long Beach catcher Brown both got two hits for Long Beach. Dwayne Hickman was charged with the loss for the Red Rebels.

Ross Reyer pitched four innings for the Red Rebels and was credited with the win. He gave up both of the Steelers' unearned runs, allowed just one hit and fanned six batters. Willis, who pitched three shutout innings in relief for Reyer, gave up just one hit, fanned four and walked three.

with two out both men scored on an error by the shortstop. In the top of the fourth inning, the Red Rebels pushed across another run when Joe Ford reached safely on an infield error, advanced to second on a balk, to third on a wild pitch and then scored on a second error in the inning.

The Steelers scored two runs in the bottom of the fourth inning with two out and had the tying and winning runs in scoring position when Myron Cook drilled a hard grounder up the middle that Second baseman Jerry Knight, who had just committed an error on the previous play, backhanded, turned and fired to nip Cook by inches.

Harrison Central loaded the bases in the fifth and again appeared to be ready to break the game open in the sixth, but the Steelers turned them down without a run.

In the Steelers' last inning stand, Mark Jenkins ripped a double down the left field line, and Perry Jenkins followed with a walk to again put the tying and winning runs on base. Kirk McDonald was charged with the Steeler loss. He gave up all three of Harrison Central's runs, only one of which was earned, and he allowed just two hits. He fanned six and walked two. Aaron Swannier, pitching three innings in relief, gave up two hits, three walks and allowed no runs.

Harrison Central, 6-5

In its second game of the afternoon, Harrison Central squeezed past Bay St. Louis Diamondhead 6-5 to move into the finals against the Long Beach Maroons.

Bay St. Louis scored two runs in the top of the first inning when Niles Blaize reached safely on an error after Willie Willis set down the first two batters on strikes. Donald Carr then grounded a double down the left field line to score Blaize, and Bill Ginn followed with a single to left that scored Carr.

In the bottom of the first inning, Harrison Central got one of the runs back when Jerry Smith walked and scored on a single to center field by Lester Lanning. Then in the third inning, Harrison Central moved in front to stay as they sent ten men to the plate and scored four runs.

Jerry Knight started the inning with a walk, and Ross Heyer was hit by a pitched ball. Lanning then lined a single to right to load the bases. With two out, Joe Ford grounded a single through the infield to tie the score at 2-2, and Phil Grant followed with a line drive single to left-center to score two more runs and give the Red Rebels a 4-2 lead. Willis followed with another single to raise the score to 5-2. Bay St. Louis got two of the runs back in the fifth inning when Randy Krankkey singled and advanced to third on a double by Arnold Fairconnetue. Both runners then raced home on two consecutive wild pitches by the pitcher Willie Willis.

Harrison Central added a single run in the bottom of the inning to raise the score to 6-4, and in the sixth, the Diamondhead nine appeared ready to tie the game when they loaded the bases with one out and one run already in, but Arnold Fairconnetue grounded into a fielder's choice to end the rally.

Willis was given the win for the Red Rebels. He pitched all seven innings, gave up all five runs, only two of which were earned, struck out four and allowed eight hits.

Randy Krankkey pitched three innings for Bay St. Louis and was charged with the loss. He gave up five earned runs, six hits, fanned one, and walked three. Tim Favre pitched three innings in relief and gave up just one run on two hits.

Long Beach Maroons, 13-4

The Long Beach Maroons took advantage of nine Harrison Central errors and numerous mental errors to down the Red Rebels 13-4 Sunday evening in the finals.

Harrison Central committed four errors in the first inning and the Maroons capitalized on the mistakes to take a 4-0 lead. The lead swelled to 8-1 when the Maroons added three more runs on a bases-loaded single and a throwing error from the outfield.

Harrison Central made its strongest bid of the game when it scored two runs and loaded the bases with two out, but the chances for a big inning died when Calvin Lee flied out to left field.

Harrison Central cut the lead to 8-4 in the fifth inning, but Long Beach scored five runs in the seventh inning to put the game out of reach.

Bill Lansdale was the winning Maroon Pitcher. He went the distance, giving up four runs on five hits and four walks. He fanned four batters. Dwayne Hickman was charged with the Harrison Central loss. He pitched all seven innings for the losers.

Harrison Central stranded six baserunners to Long Beach's four.

When in doubt, bunt

Bill Lansdale of the Long Beach Maroons lays down a perfect sacrifice bunt to advance runners to second and third base in the finals against the Senior Babe Ruth team from Harrison Central. As it turned out, Lansdale's bunt was not needed because Lansdale's pitching held the Red Rebels in check most of the way as the Maroons raced out to a 13-4 win to claim the tournament championship Sunday evening in Pass Christian.

KANTCHA

KETCHUM

By L. S. (Dec) Elliott

What the weather will do is a problem hard to solve nowadays. April and May usually brought in excellent fishing, both fresh and salt water, floundering, soft crabbing, hard crabbing, etc.

So far there has been no salt water fishing except way out in the marshes. There has been no fresh water fishing because the water most everywhere has been bad. There has been no soft crabbing because there aren't any crabs. Floundering hasn't been too hot because the water out in the Bay has been on the bad side with high tides.

Maybe the month of June will be better and bring things back to normal. Lets hope so for the young folks out of school and the older folks vacationing on the Gulf Coast. The Gulf Coast is a wonderful place to enjoy all kinds of sports. We have golfing, skiing, fishing, outdoor sports right in our own back yards.

Approval of a $75,000 federal government grant development of McLeod's Memorial Park was announced Friday at dedication ceremonies. The park is on the Texas Flat Road on Jourdan River off the Kiln Road. To us old timers, Jourdan River has always been a haven for both fresh and salt water fishing. Now the park after its development will mean another place for all to enjoy the outdoors and sports activities with three lakes - for fishing, boat launches and fishing piers on the Jourdan. Another dream coming true.

This spot has always been a natural and will be even better after its development.

Now as to fishing, things are looking better. Bass and perch are being caught most everywhere, mostly by still fishing with worms and some by fly fishing and casting. A few reds and flounders are being caught out front mostly on shrimp. Floundering is improving and soft crabbing should get better as the weather improves.

What our fishermen are saying: Joe Kern has been catching bass and perch.

Wop Glover is going as soon as weather conditions get better.

M. F. Cass will be down from Hattiesburg this week to go get them.

Ed Nelson and his brothers enjoyed a fish fry consisting of perch and bass caught the other day.

State tennis tourney set

OXFORD, Miss. - Initial plans were revealed here Saturday for the annual Mississippi Open Tennis Tournament to be held at the University of Mississippi July 23-27.

Sponsored locally by the Oxford-Lafayette County Chamber of Commerce and the Oxford-University Tennis Association, the five-day tennis extravaganza is being held at Ole Miss for the third consecutive year.

Categories include men's and women's singles and doubles, men's singles and doubles for ages 35, 45 and 55, women's singles and doubles for ages 35, 45 and 55 and a mixed doubles division.

Contestants may enter as many as three events. Awards will be made in each category. Last year's field was one of the largest and finest in the history of the tournament.

Australian Noel Phillips captured the men's open singles division last summer while Memphian Bonnie Bondeville won the women's open singles for the second straight year.

Matches will be played on the university laykold courts. Entry forms will be distributed to tennis clubs, country clubs and interested individuals and groups of tennis enthusiasts.

Further information can be obtained by writing MOTT, Box 147, Oxford, Miss., 38655.

Did you know?

Ford Pinto's sticker price is $561 less than VW Rabbit. Enough to buy 1000 gallons of gasoline-- that means it would take nearly 7 years of driving before a Pinto with its standard 4-cylinder engine loses its initial price advantage to Rabbit.

Economical four-speed manual transmission. 2 liter 4-cylinder engine. Front disc brakes. Rack and pinion steering. All standard. Pinto comes with Lifeguard Design.

Safety Features. The same type of equipment found in our full-size cars. No wonder Pinto is America's best-selling sub-compact car line.

Ford Maverick's sticker price is $1589 less than VW Dasher 4-Door. Enough to buy 2800 gallons of gasoline-- that means it would take nearly 18 years of driving before a Maverick with its standard 200 CID 6-cylinder engine loses its initial price advantage to Dasher.

200 CID 6-cylinder engine. Economical three-speed manual transmission. Gas-saving steel-belted radial ply tires. All standard. Maverick also comes with Lifeguard Design. Safety Features. The same type of equipment found in our full-size cars. No wonder Maverick is traditionally America's best-selling 4-door family compact.

Ford Mustang II's sticker price is $1420 less than VW Scirocco. Enough to buy 2600 gallons of gasoline-- that means it would take nearly 18 years of driving before a Mustang II with its standard 4-cylinder engine loses its initial price advantage to Scirocco.

Gas-saving steel-belted radial ply tires. Rack and pinion steering. 2.3 liter 4-cylinder engine. Economical four-speed manual transmission. Tachometer. All standard. Mustang II also comes with Lifeguard Design. Safety Features. The same type of equipment found in our full-size cars. No wonder Mustang II is outselling all our competitors' small luxury cars combined.

Softball teams must turn in rosters

It's "no go" for softball teams that do not turn in their official rosters to the Amateur Softball Association by July 1. Teams turning in their rosters after that date will be ineligible for the district, state, and regional playoffs sponsored by the A.S.A.

An official A.S.A. roster form can be obtained from the district commissioner or from Don Fennell, president of the A.S.A., Cleveland, Mississippi.

State and regional tournaments scheduled for this summer include slow-pitch competition for girls, women, and men with the action set to begin the weekend of July 11-13.

Bam

(Special to The Sea Coast Echo) PEARL RIVER, La. - Bam did it again.

In a special Shetland pony race at Oak Downs, you Baren Lader rode his pony a come-from-behind victory.

Daren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lader of Hancock County, visited the winner circle at Oak Downs for the second time in three weeks. On May 4 Bam Bam won special pony race, and it was of the come-from-behind variety.

And Bam Bam is getting faster. Two weeks ago his winning time was 17 seconds while Sunday's pony was clocked in 16.065 seconds.

Also visiting the winner circle from Hancock County was Doug Neace. His Gof Enuf won the 250-yard foot race in a class "AA" time 13.78 seconds in defeat (Charlie Pride 14.04).

But the best time for yards was turned in by Johnson's Tammy's Top in winning the 11th. Tammy Topette was clocked in seconds, only one-hundred of a second off the record and one two-hundred of a second off the 1975 mark. It was a Top AA race by the American Quarter Horse Association.

Running second to Tammy Topette in a Class A time 13.82 was Coco Hill, owner trained by James Watson Bay St. Louis.

Blue Devil Deck ran a 4 AA rating of 20.96 second the 400-yard 13th race, but disqualified for fouling was placed second. Golden Bars was declared winner.

J.E. Thomas, Executive Director

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE MISSISSIPPI MARINE RESOURCES COUNCIL

Amend Section II. A. to read as follows: "SECTION II. Definitions. A. A Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission permit granted to an applicant under this act shall be proof of the applicant's meeting any water quality standard considered by the Council under this act. Any conflict, relative to water quality standards, between the Council and the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission under these regulations shall be resolved in favor of the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission; provided however that the Council may undertake studies regarding water quality and submit the results of such studies to the Air and Water Pollution Control Commission; and, provided further, that the effects of effluent from the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission standards shall be considered as a factor in determining whether a regulated activity would comply with the public policy of the wetlands law."

Joe Leddy claims he is the best when it comes to catching perch on a perch pole and earth worms.

Tom Capdepon and Harris P. Boudreaux have been catching big red fish at Grand Pass. Harris said they were biting like nobody's business. They have been hitting most everywhere out at the marsh.

Donald Mauffray loves to fish but he has been pretty busy making a garden for the Senior Citizens. Donald is director of recreations for the senior group.

Joe Perniciaro and W. J. Cameron caught their share of specks, reds, and flounders out at the marsh last week.

Charley Prest said you have to go to Empire to get reds and speckles.

Hoke Ogden said he has been getting bass and perch.

Perre Quintini and Alden Mauffray are still catching red fish on shad rigs and shrimp on the Heron Bay Shore line. They also use live shrimp.

George H. Adams of Waveland is a fisherman and hunter. Right now he has a rabbit named Harvey which he claims does everything. Harvey is his constant companion.

While fishing for perch and bass with a perch pole did you ever try using a kernel of corn for bait. It works believe it or not. Was also told that a tablet of Alka Seltzer taped to a silver hook will catch bass and perch.

Had a visit Sunday from Pat Haggerty, his wife Mary Jo, Georgia and Peggy. He went fly fishing with Alden Mauffray and yours truly. Caught a nice mess of bass and perch including two two-and-a-half pounders.

Pat is a beginner at fly fishing. Mostly does salt water fishing. Has a nice boat which he shares with his friends.

For the fisherman's information Pearl River Middle River and East Middle River are still dirty. Johnson Pass is clearing fast and should furnish some good fishing shortly. The tide fell Sunday all evening for the first time in about six months.

Seemed like old times bringing in bass and perch. Black Bayou is clear way up and that goes for Mill's Bayou and Gray's Ditch.

Fly fishing and casting in these streams should be good by the end of this week also still fishing.

Michael Green and Richard Schaefer are two young men who specialize in catching crawfish and frogs. They also hunt ducks and train their own retrievers.

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK - Bob Seely, brother of Clayton, is a former wrestling champion. He spends a lot of his time at the Bay fishing and crabbing.

Spokesmen for Saga Petroleum Tuesday said the Norwegian oil exploration program in Plaquemine County was going smoothly. Drilling is expected to be completed within three to four months.

The drilling work, begun in January, is being conducted in an area locally known as Pistol Ridge near Plaquemine, Miss.

The Pistol Ridge operation is being conducted by the company in the Gulf Coast area. An announcement Feb. 21 said the two largest conglomerates, Saga Petroleum and Fred Olsen, spend in excess of $22 million of oil and natural gas in an area in South Mississippi. The joint venture well was spudded in Grand Bay area of Mobile Bay Feb. 10.

Saga petroleum engineer Normann said Tuesday the company expected to have approximately 20,000 barrels of oil at the Pistol Ridge.

Hancock County supervisors moved toward another effort to develop a $675,000 in Hurricane monies given to the county five years ago.

Supervisors wrestled with the problem Monday what was the best way to recover enough money to pay the Hancock School. $180,000 given them by the county has been spent, what.

The supervisors have developed a plan for the Governor's Economic money which must be State Bureau of Education.

In a letter addressed from county supervisor K. G. McCann, petitioners allow them to keep $180,000 given them by the county as emergency funds for the county.

The letter lists as the money is used by the school system and repairs, that no cut-off date for the money was ever accorded in the board's opinion.

The school board said the $180,000 was to be used with the two bond issues. Hancock Board said the board's contention was that the board of supervisors constituted "spending" the money.

This was ratified by the school board. The school board said that the money was used for the school system and repairs, that no cut-off date for the money was ever accorded in the board's opinion.

If the school board the $180,000 was to be used with the two bond issues. Hancock Board said the board's contention was that the board of supervisors constituted "spending" the money.

The supervisor justified putting a county as a whole board were allowed. In this case, F would have to put the outside school millage on the county.

On the county approximately $180,000 will take 20 years. Rutherford, Jr. on the outside estimated to be 1 dollar.

Your golden opportunity!

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 9, 1975 - Hank Aaron shows his form in this picture but he shows it even better in a 17-minute instructional film available on a free loan basis from local Krystal fast food restaurants. The 16mm color film, titled "Your Turn in the Box," details 20 different areas necessary to become an effective hitter. Hank is shown giving instruction to a rookie, and the movie permits slow motion observation of the important points as he demonstrates. This is a perfect vehicle for getting youngsters started on the proper track, and is a valuable refresher after the winter layoff.

Contact your local Krystal restaurant for details in obtaining the film. No projector is provided. (PRN)
